Below the crust, Earth is made of red-hot melted rock. This part of the Earth is like the white of the apple.

Begin with the more than 30 stories stored on the disk — each one high in kid-appeal, and approved by Weekly Reader editors! Then see if users can answer the comprehension questions that follow each story.

Teachers — or parents — can enter their own stories and questions, completely customizing the program for children. The story possibilities are endless.

Choose a grade level story — or create a story — about science...history...fiction...whatever you decide!

The handy, practical print-out feature allows kids to do student reports and teachers to create test masters on paper!

The program material is structured to appropriate grade levels 2 through 4. The computer automatically advances when children are ready to try another skill level...or an adult can choose the level a child is ready for.
